

The 13th Training Course on “The Criminal Justice Response to Corruption”

1. Duration and Participants

- From 18 October to 12 November, 2010
- Seventeen overseas participants from sixteen countries/territories
- Four domestic participants and two domestic observers

2. Programme Overview

Corruption poses a serious threat to the stability and security of societies, and jeopardizes sustainable development and economic growth. It is a phenomenon that has to be addressed collectively at an international level. This programme offers participants an opportunity to share experiences, gain knowledge, and examine concrete measures against corruption. It is also hoped that the participants will create an international network of counterparts.

Major topics for discussion include:

- The current situations in the respective countries of corruption and related acts and their existing legal regimes and mechanisms to investigate, prosecute and adjudicate these offences (including confiscation and recovery of assets);
- The current situations of, and problems and challenges in, the investigation, prosecution and adjudication of these offences; focusing on measures/mechanisms relevant to: (i) punishing offenders effectively, and (ii) the effective confiscation of illegal benefits and recovery of assets
