Victim Identification
Markets Where Human Trafficking Occurs

- Sexual Exploitation
  - Prostitution
  - Exotic Dancers
  - Massage Parlors
- Forced Labor
  - Sweat shops
  - Domestic
  - Agriculture
  - Restaurant
Who Engages in Trafficking?

• Individuals
  • Pimps and panderers with commercial sexual motives
  • Diplomatic staff/foreign executives who arrive with “servants”
  • Neighbors, friends, or relatives of the victim

Who Engages in Trafficking?

• Family Operations
  • Often will involve an extended family
  • Family will usually operate on both sides of the border

• Independently owned businesses
  • Contractors/agents that provide laborers for agricultural work, construction work, restaurants, janitorial services
Who Engages in Trafficking?

• International Organized Crime Syndicates
  • “Diversified trafficking portfolios”: Criminal organizations that traffic humans in Eastern Europe often smuggle drugs and guns as well.

  Smuggling routes for all three are often characterized as being the same.

Who are Trafficking Victims?

• Illegal Immigrants
• Impoverished
• Children
• Disabled
• Smuggling Debts
• Language Barriers
• Fear of Gov’t Officials
THE VICTIMS

800,000-900,000 trafficked annually across international borders worldwide

Trafficking in the United States
- 18,000-20,000 trafficked annually
- More than half are CHILDREN
- Include both U.S. citizens and non-citizens
- Originate from Africa, Asia, India, Latin America, Eastern Europe, Russia, Canada, among other places

Victim Identification

- Patrolmen
- Places of Worship
- Shelters
- Neighbors (ordinary citizens)
- Inspectors/Licensing Officials
HEIGHTENED VULNERABILITY

- Human trafficking crimes often involve kidnapping, rape, beatings, trickery and threats. Victims are usually extremely vulnerable members of society – chosen for that very reason. Victims can be women, men and children.
- Traffickers identify and exploit a vulnerability
- Vulnerabilities can include age, isolation from family, limited education level, history of abuse, undocumented status, poverty, illiteracy, addiction, disability, or any combination

CHILD VICTIMS

- Sex trafficking cases involving minor victims often involve the same circumstances as adults – beatings, threats, coercion, etc. But often times the traffickers use only promises of love, shelter or a brighter future to entice minors into prostitution.
- For adult victims, we must prove that force, fraud or coercion was used by the trafficker to compel the victim’s sexual service. For minor victims, there is no such requirement. A minor’s consent is an non-issue. Causing a minor to engage in commercial sex is prohibited, whether they agree or not.
The Victim Interview: Essential Evidence

The sex trafficking investigation is unlike any other type of criminal investigation due to the uniquely intimate and invasive nature of the crime.

Unlike many other types of cases, the victim interview is the most essential piece of evidence you will have in your case.
Power of the Victim Interview?

“The role of the victim advocate is to believe a victim’s story, whereas the role of a police officer is prove it.”

By corroborating as many facts as possible, no matter how insignificant they may seem, you can better help establish the validity of the victim’s story and improve the victim’s credibility even when there are other problems with the investigation.

Obstacles to Effective Interviewing

Some obstacles intrinsic in the investigative process or to the investigator him- or herself serve as hindrances to an effective and accurate interview.

1. Asking for “Just the facts”
2. The police personality
3. The tough-guy facade
4. The police career path
Effective Interviewing

First, do no harm…

Any possible efforts should always be made to minimize potential further trauma to the victim.

The Victim’s Story

- Earn Trust
- Empower victim with choices – even small ones
- Victim trauma, shame, fear, loyalty, and distrust
- Avoid Direct Questions
  - “When did you illegally enter the United States?”
  - “How long have you been a prostitute?”
- Do not use cop-lingo
- Assume prostitution, illegal status
- Be prepared for bad judgment.
- Expect evolving statements
Setting the Stage

There are many ways to “set the stage” for an effective victim interview…

1. Select an appropriate location
   • Safe and comfortable for the victim
   • Private and free from distraction
   • Maintain an equal or inferior physical position

2. Ask the victim if she would like anyone to be present during the interview.
   • Should be determined privately with the victim
   • Potential witnesses must be excluded
   • Always include a support person when requested
Setting the Stage

3. Explain the purpose of the interview and address immediate concerns.
   - The purpose is to gather evidence and the victim’s statement, not to find fault or blame.
   - There will be questions that the victim doesn’t have the answers to.
   - The victim does not need to make any immediate decisions about prosecution.

Setting the Stage

4. Present yourself in an accepting and compassionate manner.
   - Acknowledge the gravity of the ordeal
   - Allow the victim to vent
   - Demonstrate empathy
   - Help the victim regain control
Techniques: Creating and Maintaining an Open Interview

1. Explaining the Questions.
   • Explaining questions dealing with sensitive issues helps put the victim’s fears at ease.
   • Use the law to explain why you need specific information.
   • Asking about high risk behavior does not mean that you doubt the victim’s story.

2. Physical Techniques
   • Eye contact
   • Use inviting body language
   • Avoid touching the victim
4. Engage in Active Listening.

- Without interrupting the flow of the victim’s narrative, try to interject comments that indicate you have been listening.
- Encourage the victim to continue talking while knowing that the victim is being heard.

3. Use of Sexual Language.

- Avoid using police terminology.
- Clarify any slang terms that the victim uses to ensure you understand what they mean.
- Mimic terms used by the victim without acting shocked or embarrassed by them.
The Victim’s Narrative

The victim’s narrative is the most vital part of the investigation.

Establish that you know of the existence of trafficking indicators, and that you are there to help individuals who may be in trouble. Then ask the victim to tell you what happened to her in her words and at her own pace. You can facilitate the interview while allowing the victim to tell the story (the victim’s way) by:

1. Using open-ended prompts.
2. Allowing the victim to control the pace.
3. Avoiding leading questions.

The Victim’s Narrative

Interruptions: Fatal Flaws

In a recent study, it was found that the average police interview had 3 open-ended questions and 26 closed-ended questions with an average of only 1-second pauses between each question. Most detectives interrupted responses to open-ended questions after 7.5 seconds with an average of 4 interruptions per response. Not one of the interviews studied had a victim that was allowed to complete an uninterrupted response.
After the Initial Narrative

Upon completion of the initial narrative, go back and clarify specific points and gather additional details about the victim’s experience using open-ended follow-up questions.

Information You Should Obtain During the Course of the Interview

Essential elements in collecting information from the interview:

- Description of the victim’s behavior and relationship with the suspect
- Description of the suspect’s behavior
- Description of the labor and circumstances of the labor
- Documentation of the specific acts committed and whether any acts were repeated
- Description of the suspect’s sexual behavior
- Establishing force, or threat of force, or climate of fear
Conclusion of the Interview

• Ask the victim if he or she has any additional information that he or she wants to report, let the victim know there will be future opportunities.
• Reassure and thank the victim.
• Explain future procedures.

Exercise

Officer training – in a class have officers pair off, one should play the part of a trafficking victim while the other plays the role of the investigating officer. Have the officer practice using the following techniques while the “victim” relates a fictitious story:

• Open-ended questions
• Asking graphic questions in a sensitive, comfortable manner
• Empathetic statements
• Eye contact
• Refraining from interrupting
• Using follow-up questions to clarify points
DEFENSE – it was voluntary & didn’t know they were underage

Wanted to come to U.S. at any cost

 Pictures of cook-outs; trips to lake

 Left every night with driver and came back

 Girls came with their boyfriend and willing to work as prostitutes.

18 U.S.C. 1591 (a)

- In our cases involving minors, the government had to establish beyond a reasonable doubt the following elements for each minor victim:

  1) Knowingly recruited, enticed, harbored, transported, provided, or obtained a person; OR knowingly benefitted, financially or by receiving something of value, from participating in a venture that did so;

  2) Knowing that the person was under 18 (or where the defendant had a reasonable opportunity to observe the minor, knowledge of age need not be proven; and

  3) Acts were in or affecting interstate commerce
Critical Challenge: Earning Victim’s trust (adults and minors)

- Fear of harm to self or family
- Shame, fear of exposure
- Loyalty to trafficker
- Distrust of law enforcement
- Denial of situation
- Cultural norms
- Linguistic hurdles
- Difficulty articulating complex emotions
- Psychological trauma
